

ISLAND VILLAS' MANAGING DIRECTOR RICHARD EAMES (third right) and Anna Burnett (second right) with recipients of the donation: (from left) Bob Parravicino of The ARK Animal Welfare Society, Nicole Garafano of the Future Centre Trust, Donna Barker of the HIV/AIDS Food Bank, Donnah Russell of the Variety Club, and Adrian Barker of the Kirsten Lopez Medical Fund.
(Picture by Marlon Madden.)

INDICATORS for the real estate market are looking up despite a number of taxes and the ongoing recession, says one villa operator.

Richard Eames, managing director of property management company ISLAND VILLAS, says the market has been

Eames said people from around the world continued to stay at villas and were spending money. That, he said, was an indication that the market was holding its own.

"The rental market and tourism market at five villas have been

Barbados and around the world. It is a very strong brand that will pull in new buyers.

"There are a lot of opportunities coming in the future," said Eames.

Eames said he believed the additional fees imposed by British

Real estate business 'moving again'

Island Villas